January 10-14, 2022

OUR LEARNING

Happy New Year! I hope your family had a happy and relaxing Christmas. It's hard to believe that we already at the halfway point of the school year. Information on winter parent-teacher conferences and Catholic Schools Week will be coming soon.

This week in spelling our words will have some tricky spelling patterns. In reading we will focus on fiction skills as we read another chapter book in our small groups. In writing we will review opinion writing as we begin working on a book review.

OUR LEARNING

In math we are working on counting money and telling time. Both of these can be tricky, so extra work at home is really helpful. IXL has some great practice sections, and I will send home your student's login info so he or she can use this great learning tool at home.

OUR LEARNING

In social studies we are learning about the three different types of communities. We will focus on housing, transportation, and how people make a living in each kind of community.

In theology we will wrap up our learning about Reconciliation before moving on to our preparation for First Communion.
