Note from Mrs. Saladin

Dear St. Charles school families,

One of the things I love about our school is seeing the older and younger students work together. Our fourth graders joined the preschoolers to make applesauce, helping them peel, slice, and core the apples. The fourth graders took their role seriously, and the preschoolers loved having the older students there to help. Of course, everyone was happy to eat the applesauce once it was ready!

Learning took a hands-on turn for our eighth graders in Ken Lehman's workshop. Mr. Lehman and several volunteers showed them how to use woodworking tools, then worked alongside them as they built benches for the Brews, Bids & BBQ auction. Each student had a chance to take part in the work and see what they could make with their own hands. We're grateful to Mr. and Mrs. Lehman and the volunteers for sharing their time and skills with our students.

Peace,
Mrs. Saladin
